

The Powder of Ibn Ghazi

- To start, focus desire into a base of equal parts fairy bone (or Mi-Go wings, provided they are fresh and untainted) and blessed Egyptian clay of the Nile.
- Grind in darkness using a mortar of freshly-cast lead and pestle untouched by rainwater.
- Mix with rare blackened sands gathered from the beaches of Oriab in the Dreamlands.
- If desirous of greater duration, add a pinch of pitchblende shavings. Temper such desire with caution if using Mi-Go wings, for a small chance of spontaneous localized disintegration may persist.
- Cure for between one third and one half of a dark day during solstice (winter will cure at greater pace).
- Store in sealed pouches or bottles, no more than fifty-seven grains per container. Of dire import!
